THE January number of the Nineteenth Century contains two articles of exceptional interest to the student of politics—one by Professor HUELEY, the other by Mr. HEE-BERT SPENCER. A contemporary speaks of the former as "a lively assault on the central position of the Radical faith conductod by the expert fallacy-killer Professor Huxley." As a matter of fact, it is an assault on the doctrines contained in Rous-BEAU'S " Discours sur l'origin de l'inegalité parmi les hommes" ad "Du Contrat Social." The Professor states his object to The title of the article is "On the Natural profoundly important it is the all should and Mr. Spences are old antagonists on sociological questions, and the Professor seems a little disappointed that on this occasion he cannot, while striking at the Land Socialists, strike at Mr. SPENCER. In a footnote he says, somewhat sarcastically: "From Mr. HEREERT SPENCER'S letter in the Times of the 27th November, 1889, I gather that he repudiates the dostrines which I am about to criticise. I rejoice to hear it; in the first place, because they thus lose the shelter of his high authority; secondly, because, after this repudiation, anything I may say in the course of the following pages against Rousseau cannot be disagreeable to him; and thirdly, because I desire to express my regret that, in however good company, I should have lacked the intelligence to perceive that Mr. SPENCER had previously repudiated the ideas attributed to him by the Land Socialists." It is a curious coincidence that in the same num- F.G.S., M.A.I., in the British North Borneo ber of the same magazine, Mr. SPENCER should come forward to correct certain misrepresentations of his opinions made by We make the following extract from the Professor HUXLEY elsewhere. Mr. SPENCER'S article is entitled. "Absolute Political Ethics," and the following extract shows the time factor to the state and to the individual. To the position of the writer :-These oxists a division of physical science distinguished as abstract or absolute mechanics—absolute in the sense that its propositions are unqualified. It is concerned with statics and dynamics in their pure forms—deals with force and motion considered as free from all interference resulting from friction, resistance of media, and special properties of matter. it enunciates a law of motion, it recognises nothing which modifies manifestation of it. If it formulates the properties of the lover it treats of this assuming to be perfectly rigid and without thickness -an im possible lever. Its theory of the screw imagines the screw to be frictionless; and in treating of the wedge, absolute incompressibility is supposed. Thus its truths are never presented in experience. Even those movements of the heavenly bodies which are deducible from its propositions are always more or less perqualify them by taking into account the nature of the materials he uses. The course which a projectile would take if subject only to the propulsive force and the attraction of the earth must be recognised, though no such course is ever pursued; correction for atmospheric resistance cannot else be made. That is to mospheric resistance cannot else be made. That is to easy, though, by empirical methods, applied or relative mechanics may be developed to a considerable extent, it cannot be highly developed without the sid of absolute mechanics. So is it here. Belative political ethics, or that which deals with right and wrong in public affairs as partially determined by changing circumstances, cannot progress without taking into account right and wrong considered apart from changing circumstances—cannot do without absolute political ethics; the propositions of which, deduced from the conditions under which life is carried on in from the conditions under which life is carried on in Saturday afternoun: the associated state, should take no account of the special circumstances of any particular associated

The formulation of absolute political ethics is the work on which Mr. Spencer is now. engaged. Professor Huxley appears to have accused him of advocating their application to the practical affirm of life without making allowance for the actual conditions of the problems to be solved. t	The following is the report for presentation at the yearly meeting of shareholders in the above
	Company, to be held on Saturday next, the 15th inst. at the Hongkong Hotel:—
t	To the Shareholders of The Songel Koyah
	- Planting Company, Limited. GENTLEMEN:—The General Managers have now to submit to you their report with a Statement of k	Accounts for the period ending 30th November, 1889. They regret exceedingly they have not se favourable
t	news to lay before you as they would desire, as far as regards the quantity of the 1889 crop, though the rea on's working has at least proved the ability of the
•	estate to raise tobacco of excellent quality, as evid- enced by the Tolographic Reports from London and Amsterdam on samples sent home in November last. The valuation wired from London being 2s. 6d. to 3 shillings per lb.
n	It has been now shown on first opening an estate in Borneo, there are great difficulties to be encountered.
ť	foremost amongst them being the matter of the Coolie supply; it was found that the coolies engage i. being in apprienced hands, could not stand the hard
0	work required, such as cutting jungle, making roads. drains, &c., and keep in health, the result being that 0	many were entirely incapacitated, while others proved useless for some time. The immediate effect of this curtailment of labour was obviously to cause the
j.	Manager to materially reduce the area under oultivation, as, to have attempted more, might y	simply have involved the loss of the whole, and his decision under the circumstances was undoubtedly the right one. His report appended, hereto will best

t •	has since proved a fallacy, consequently instead of the planting being finished in June it ran on till September, and before the trees were ready for
Ħ	outting heavy rains set in with disastrons effects, and with the flooding of some of the fields; the Company unfortunately lost 64 of those planted. As however lanting in future will be commenced much earlier in the year, this should not occur again.
1	All the trees are now cut, and the crop is in propess of drying and fer centing From the Manager's late advices a yield of about 430 piculs is expected, which should be shipped about April-that the Government have evidence of negotiations having taken place with Garilla, the wellknown Spanish revolutionist. Like the Republicans, the Socialists are also divided into two camps, one consisting of Marzists, the other of Possibilists. In spite, how. ever, of these divisions and the apparently small number of setually declared Republicans, the industries of the whole party of discontent is very considerable, and is spreading. The best evideuce of this is afforded by the number and success of its organs in the Press. The Seculo, for example, is not only the leading Republican journal, but it is the most powerful and widely read newspaper in the country. Besides this there are three Republican newspapers published in Lisbon, the Debates, the Amigo de Povo, and the Folke do Povo, the latter a very violent evening journal. In Porto the leading newspaper is the Radical. Another element of danger—and this arounts very largely for the inactivity of the Government—is that the army is, to a considerable extent, permeated with Republican principles. This is especially the case in the artillery regiments Many of the young officers who have been trained in the Military Academy are known to be Republicans, and it is believed that it would not be difficult to obtain their assistance in the event of a revolutionary outbreak. On the other hand the bureaugracy is stoutly loyal, and so are the agricultural classes and a large portion of the labouring population. It is not at all unlikely that the warlike attitude of the Portuguess Cabinet at the present moment has been influenced by the renewal of Republican intrigues to which the events in Brazil have given rise. Not that the Lisbon Government is stupid enough to contemplate actual warfare; but the African question may enable it to carry out, in the excitement of im- B pending hostilities, such a redistribution of the army as shall place the capital out of the control of disaffected regiments. It is also an opport Cl tunity of stirring the national spirit, and of Ch awakening the recollection of the past glories of | C the Monarchy.-Globe.

IS MEDICINE A SCIENCE!

The reproach that medicine has not kept step with the general scientific progress of the age is one so commenly made that it has often doubtless been acc its. as a traism by many who in other matters exercise a more discriminating judgment. On the part of these who know the facts there is, of course, not the slightest question that medicine is scientific in the best and Hongkong Ice...... highest meaning of the word. How the query H. & K. Wharf & G. arises is easily explained when one considers the II. Steam Laundry ... erroneousness of the common conception of the Hongkong Rope term science, the failure to provide the means H. & W. Dock of proper physiological knowledge in our plans Hotelsof primary education, the deplorable condition of medical education, and, lastly, the ignorance of what modern scientific medicine has deneand is doing. The last point seems the most important, and in considering it one must not forget that so fast as a more or less clearly circumscribed department of medicine has grown precise and scientific, it has as a specialty taken a position of semi-independence. The world thinks only of the remaining undifferentiated part, called general or internal medicine, as being distinctly medical; and forgets that the specialties, which have almost reached the limit of possible scientific extension and accuracy, are very essential parts of medioine, themselves the samples and pledges of coming progress in all. Thus, in surgery, ophthalmology, obstetrics, dentistry, otology, dermatology, &c., there is on the part of competent physicians no considerable difference as to diagnosis and treatment in a given case; and the reduction the mortality from cisms selonging to these departments is proof of that systematisation and accuray which we call scientific. It, is well known that the application of bacteriological study to surgery, obstetrics, &c., has in important respects revolutionised them. Surgical, hospital, and puorperal fevers are now almost things of the past. Twenty years ago it was not uncommon for the Perak Sugar mortality of puerperal septicamia to mount as Plantinghigh as 80, and even 50 per cent. It is to-day less than I per cent. The same explanation is to be given as regards the successfulness of the modern Casarean section. The science of pelvimetry has also saved the lives of many children and mothers. Cphtalmology is perhaps the most exact of the medical sciences, and even if no prophylaxic of estaract be ever found, the restoration of vision in 95 per cent. of cataract operations is a decisive proof of excellent work. But, perhaps, a still greater beneficence is to come from stifling the most fertile source of Watson & Co., A. S.

If one thoroughly conversant with the medical progress of the last few years take up even the best work on pathology or general medicine issued five or ten years age he is astonished to find how much seems old and outgrown. The stupendous discoveries and advances made from day to day cause the book before the last to seem like histor here. No other that of the existence and disease-producing infinence of the minute organisms calle bacteria, microbes, or micro-organisms. Their pathogenic influence is now patablished beyond controversy, and to this discovery is due the revolutionising of surgery, the extinction of surgical and puerperal favor, &c. Indeed. every department of medicine has been electrified the partial success and perfect promise that holds out. The infective diseases are the principal disease and death producers of the world, and al are quite certainly bound up with the transfer of specific bacteria or poisons from one organism to another. The profound, almost sole, lesson of prophylaxis and proventive medicine, is the avoidance of contamination. Phthisis, the most fatal of all diseases, causing one death out of every eight, is now proved to be contagious. Its inception depends upon the passage of the living bacillas from one organism to another. When this is prevented the dread affection will no longer mow down its millions. Its prevention seems easy, and by two feasible simple means: the devitalisation of the sputum of consumptive One result of the revolution in Brazil has been patients, since the desiccated tuber of ebacillus still to stimulate the activity of the Republicans in maintains its vitality; and the legal control and Portugal, who already form a by no means inspection of all dairies and the slaughtering of negligeable party in the state.
